At SFU we are devoted to playing an active roll within our local, provincial and national communities and organizations. The Clan women's basketball team has been a leader in this effort as players have gone out of their way year after year to help raise awareness and money for disease and poverty, mentor aspiring student athletes and lend a hand wherever one is needed. Not only have members of the team put on highly successful charity events, such as Balding for Dollars, which raised over 35 thousand dollars for breast cancer, but members of the team can be seen on a day to day basis in local community centers and schools.
